Dear Friend,

Living in a rural state, Mainers rely on the U.S. Postal Service (USPS) to deliver letters from loved ones, life-saving medications, bills, livestock, and so much more. As we stay at home during the pandemic, has made this service more important than ever. Unfortunately, the Trump Administration decided that a public health crisis was an acceptable time to try to sabotage the Postal Service.

I'm fighting against these attacks by the Trump Administration, most recently with my vote to pass the Delivering for America Act. As I continue working to protect the Postal Service, I would like to hear from you about your experiences with USPS. How have the recent changes affected you? How do you use the Postal Service? Please let me know what you think below:

Have you or has someone you know experienced delays in receiving mail or sending mail?

- Yes
- No

Are you aware of the operational changes by Trump-appointed Postmaster General Louis DeJoy, including but not limited to, restrictions on mail transportation trips and reductions in mail sorting equipment?

- Yes
- No

In the last six months have you used the Postal Service to (check all that apply):

- Receive a prescription medication
- Get medical supplies
- Order quarantine supplies or other goods
- Pay bills
- Contact a legislator or other governmental official
- Vote
- Reach out to loved ones

In the next six months, do you plan to use the Postal Service to (please check all that apply):

- Receive a prescription medication
- Get medical supplies
- Get quarantine supplies or other goods

- Pay bills
- Contact a legislator or other government official
- Vote
- Reach out to loved ones

What other USPS discrepancies or delays have you seen? How have these policy changes impacted your or your family?

What does the Postal Service mean for you and your family? What else do you rely on USPS for?

Is there anything else you'd like my office to know?
